A: Using awk and based on the given given sample input: `$ awk '{if(match($0,"^{2}[a-zA-Z0-9_]{2,}")){print substr($0,RSTART,RLENGTH); exit}}' in1.txt > out.txt` This should output all lines that start with 2 or more. and end with 2 or more [a-zA-Z0-9_]{2,} and print to out.txt. I'm assuming what you are after here is the first word following the period in a line, so there are no leading periods in the input. If this is not the case, you can use this command instead: `$ awk '{if(match($0,"^{2}[a-zA-Z0-9_]{2,}")){print substr($0,RSTART,RLENGTH); exit}}' in1.txt > out.txt` Edit: The main issue with your code is you are trying to read in a file as a string. Unless your file is very small, this will not work. Here is a better way of doing it (assuming you are still looking for the first word following a period): `$ awk '\.^{2}[a-zA-Z0-9_]{2,}/ {print substr($0,RSTART,RLENGTH)}' in1.txt > out.txt` This will print all of the lines that match the format for the given sample input. Edit 2: Based on your comment, the modified code that will get you what you want is: `$ awk '/[^\.]{2}[a-zA-Z0-9_]{2,}/ {print substr($0,RSTART,RLENGTH)}' in1.txt > out.txt` Q: How do you create a grid layout like in the following image using CSS grid? I'm trying to create a grid layout similar to the example below: I tried using display: grid and also floating the divs but I wasn't sure how to make them divide the screen evenly. A: Here is an example with flexbox .container { width:
